HISD teacher faces charges of indecency

By S.K. BARDWELL
AND WILLIAM PACK
OF THE HOUSTON POST STAFF

A Houston middle school teacher accused of fondling a special education student repeatedly during the last school year was awaiting trial on similar charges in Florida when the Houston Independent School District hired him, officials said Wednesday.

HISD Superintendent Joan Raymond said school officials were unaware of fondling charges against Michael David Stein when they hired him in October to be a special education teacher.

Florida school officials had been asked for references on Stein, but they did not send any and HISD did not send a second request, Raymond said.

"We should have pursued references from Florida more thoroughly," Raymond said.

She said Stein had gotten an acceptable reference from a school district outside Denver where he taught before coming to Houston.

Stein, 31, of the 11500 block of Bissonnet, was charged with six counts of indecency with a child and remained jailed without bond Wednesday, police said.

He also faces two felony counts of fondling a child under 14 years of age in St. Petersburg, Fla., in connection with a 1985 case that has not come to trial, officials there said.

An 11-year-old boy told Houston authorities Stein fondled the boy's genitals on six occasions between April and June when he was a student in Stein's class for emotionally disturbed students at Black Middle School.

In each of the six instances, police said, Stein allegedly told the child he must remove his pants so Stein could be sure the boy had not been sexually abused.

The incidents came to light on the last day of the school year, when the student's mother found a note to her son allegedly written by Stein, said Houston Police Department spokesman Dan Turner.

From A-18

While the note contained nothing openly vulgar, Turner said the child's mother thought its contents inappropriate for a teacher-student relationship and took it to school officials. Raymond said Stein apparently did not admit to any wrongdoing when he was questioned by school authorities. Police were called in shortly thereafter.

Turner said the investigation was put on hold until the alleged victim returned from a summer vacation. Stein was arrested without incident at his home early Wednesday, Turner said.

The charges from Florida were discovered during the booking process, Turner said.

Raymond said Stein had been "monitored closely" by school officials during the school year because he appeared to be too close to students and touched them more than officials deemed desirable.

Stein was counseled and reprimanded twice for the behavior, but it never produced any complaints from students or "anything of substance that would allow the district to act" before the note was turned in, Raymond said.

"Parents have a right to expect children to be safe at school," Raymond said, but she added the district had no authority to move against the teacher until evidence was uncovered.

Raymond said she intends to recommend that Stein be fired when the school board considers personnel issues next week.

Stein's is the latest in a series of cases involving allegations of sexual abuse against area teachers. HISD records as of February — the most recent available from the district — showed that 13 of the 21 teachers on suspension at the time had been accused of sexual or physical misconduct.

Officials in Pinellas County, Fla., said the 1985 case arose while Stein was teaching in St. Petersburg but they did not know other details of the alleged incident. Raymond said Stein taught in a private school in Florida for only a few months before returning to Colorado.

Stein was charged in Florida Dec. 3, 1986, but was not arrested until July 22, 1987, when authorities in Arvada, Colo., where he was teaching, took him into custody on the Florida warrant, officials said.

He posted bond and was released the same day.

Teacher is charged in fondling

By JAMES T. CAMPBELL and ANDREA D. GREENE
Houston Chronicle

A Houston Independent School District teacher was arrested Wednesday and charged with fondling an 11-year-old special education student over a three-month period.

Michael David Stein, 31, of 11555 Bissonnet, was charged with six counts of indecency with a child.

Stein, who faces trial in Florida on a similar charge, was arrested at his home Wednesday morning. He was being held in the City Jail without bail.

HISD Superintendent Joan Raymond said Stein's Florida charge did not show up in pre-employment background checks because the teacher had a clear record in Colorado, where he worked before coming to HISD.

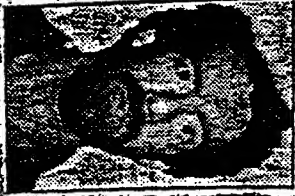

Raymond said the district regretfully did not pursue the teacher's Florida records because Stein taught there only a short time at a private school. HISD asked for the records, but the school did not yet respond, she said.

Teacher

Stein's charge alleges that Stein, a special education teacher at J.S.M. Black Middle School, fondled a 11-year-old boy at the school on April 17 and 24 and May 1 and 8.

The last incident allegedly occurred June 8, according to a birth document.

HISD spokesman Joan Raymond said Stein was arrested by a Dallas police officer when the boy's mother found a letter Stein had allegedly written to a boy in the school.

She thought the letter was inappropriate for a teacher/student relationship and confronted school officials, said Turner. There was nothing vulgar in the letter, she just thought it was inappropriate.

HISD claims investigated before bringing a juvenile sexual abuse charge against Stein.

Stein was arrested in Florida in July 1987 and charged with two counts of handling and fondling a child under the age of 16, Florida authorities said.

Stein posted bond on the same day he was arrested and has not been to trial because his lawyers have filed several motions to dismiss and reconsider the charges.

Florida authorities said Stein was charged with fondling a child and sexual abuse.

Raymond said that teachers at Black Middle School recently complained about Stein's "unprofessional" behavior around children, and the principal there began keeping a record of the charges.

Those charges against Stein, an HISD teacher since October 1986, were "nothing of a specific nature," Raymond said.

Because of Stein's already-limited record, HISD responded immediately after the mother of the emotionally disturbed sixth-grader showed the principal the letter her son received. Raymond said

Raymond called the letter inappropriate, but declined to disclose the contents.

The district investigated and then turned the matter over to police, she said.

Raymond said she wanted, a year ago, to require fingerprinting of all new HISD teachers, but "we ran into a snafu — some sort of regulation preventing it."

"We want to find a way to address this issue, to screen beyond the borders of the state," said Larry Yawn, HISD's assistant superintendent for external relations.

Fingerprinting would have allowed HISD to get into national crime networks maintained by law enforcement authorities, Yawn said.

Raymond said she will wait until the Aug. 14 school board meeting before recommending disciplinary action for Stein. Other teachers with criminal charges pending have been suspended with pay in accordance with state law.

February figures the latest available show 21 HISD teachers suspended with pay. That number is lower now, Raymond said, because some have since quit or been fired.

Dear Kent:

This is a follow-up on some communication which we had last year related to the above-named individual. I appreciate all the information which you have sent us.

I would like to know whether or not the investigation in Florida was ever completed and whether Mr. Stein was arrested and tried. If there has been a trial and a conviction, we would like to have this for our file since this would strengthen it considerably and leave us to be able to refuse registration anywhere in the country where he might try to register.

Let us know if you can give us any additional information. Thank you for protecting the youth of America.
